relevant internal and external stakeholders such as educational agencies, businesses, and professional associations. She recommends changes to current regulations, policies, procedures, laws, and administrative rules to the Bureau Administrator and supervises the preparation of publications and the distribution of appropriate reports, studies, and curriculum bulletins, as well as the collection, analyzation, and preparation of data for state and federal reports.

The course, Curriculum and Instruction Capstone, will benefit the Department and Stephanie by enhancing her knowledge and capabilities as an effective education consultant for the Bureau of Career Development and will assist her in gaining the skills and proficiency needed to be an innovative advocate for Career and Technical Education (CTE). This is the second and last part of the final course in the Master of Curriculum and Instruction program, it will allow her to analyze and defend methodologies, techniques, and processes used on work-related assignments while also understanding the principles of assessing and managing change and the communication tools required to effectively implement change. This course will give her the opportunity to apply the principles learned throughout the entire program of study and will demonstrate competence by integrating and applying those skills to a real-world scenario. Curriculum and instruction apply to tasks that Stephanie is responsible for in her daily work for the department, including monitoring, technical assistance, communicating, scheduling, and managing changing conditions. This knowledge allows her to be more effective and efficient on future projects within the department as well as gain continuous improvement of processes and procedures.

Course content will give Stephanie the formal education in curriculum and instruction, risk management, and leadership knowledge that she is seeking to enhance and deepen her capabilities to bring to her work and department.

The Department of Education encourages and supports employees who wish to further their professional growth through continuing education in disciplines that are mutually advantageous. Successful completion of the program will add to the overall strength of the department to perform its mission to the students of New Hampshire.

This course will not be taken on State time.
